FDP Overview -

In the rapidly evolving landscape of higher education, the integration of digital technologies has become essential for effective teaching, learning, and assessment. The transition from traditional classroom methods to technology-enabled environments—especially through Learning Management Systems (LMS) and data-driven decision-making—has transformed academic delivery.

This Five-Day Faculty Development Programme (FDP) is designed to equip educators with the knowledge and practical skills required to effectively utilize LMS platforms, design engaging digital content, and harness learning analytics to improve student outcomes and institutional performance.

Objectives

The FDP aims to:

- Enhance understanding of digital learning ecosystems and NEP 2020 alignment.
- Provide hands-on training in LMS tools (course creation, assessment, tracking).
- Develop skills for e-content creation and instructional design.
- Introduce learning analytics and dashboard interpretation.
- Enable data-driven teaching strategies for improving student engagement.
- Familiarize participants with emerging trends like AI in education.

Resource Persons -

Lectures will be delivered online by the faculty members from IITs, NITs and other reputed institutes. The faculty development program (FDP) has added provisions for distinguished speakers from various Industries and also from research laboratory / International Universities.
